Gregory Ghent
Director
James G. Davis Constuction
(301) 881-2990
gghent@davisconstruction.com

In Greg's 18 years at DAVIS he advanced from intern to a Director in DAVIS' commercial real estate repositioning group. Greg is a key player in some of the DC region's most notable and award-winning commercial construction projects including Constitution Center ($253M), HQ for a major bank ($102M), SiriusXM Satellite Radio ($48M), Silverline Center ($30M), 2000 K Street ($43M), and many more. As Director, Greg is the top DAVIS leader for multiple ongoing construction projects, with overall responsibility for delivering the project to the client on time and within budget. Greg also serves by invitation on several internal DAVIS committees focused on bettering DAVIS' business practices and have been acknowledged as a trusted and respected contributor by the company's executive leadership.

Outside of DAVIS, Greg serves as President of his condo board and recently retired after 15 years of coaching high school hockey at DeMatha Catholic High School (reaching the state championship ten times). Robert Gibson
Principal Planner
Arlington County Dept. of Environment
(703) 228-4833
rgibson@arlingtonva.us

Robert Gibson grew up in Arlington County and now works as a transportation planner for the County. Over the past 10 years he has worked on over 15 million square feet of development that has been approved and built. Most of his contributions cannot be seen, because they start with making sure new projects have the infrastructure to support the growth. If you are in Arlington and you like the new sidewalk you are strolling down, there is a good chance Rob had something to do with it.

Before working for Arlington, Rob consulted on traffic/transportation engineering and planning projects across the Washington DC area. Over his career, his focus has been on creating transportation solutions that help people enjoy the city rather than being a "Slave to the Traffic Light". (Catch the Phish reference?)

Rob lives in Adams Morgan with his partner. They are looking for a new beagle to share their home and hearts.

jharkleroad@nitschengdc.com

Jen Harkleroad is a civil engineer and project manager with over 15 years of experience in site design, stormwater management, water and sewer design, roadway design, permitting, and construction cost estimating. She has several years of experience working in the DC Metro area, including projects for the Architect of the Capitol and the National Zoological Park. She is currently involved in the DC Clean Rivers Rock Creek Project which includes the construction of green infrastructure to eliminate discharge into the District's combined sewer system.

Jen grew up in a Navy family and moved nine times in sixteen years. She earned a Bachelor's Degree in Civil Engineering from the University of Maryland, College Park.

Jen was active in ULI North Florida for many years before relocating to Maryland in 2015. Jen was a ULI Urban Plan volunteer and served on the Technical Assistance Panel committee and the Membership committee. Jen joined ULI Washington in 2016 and has served on the ULI Communications Committee.

Jen's previous work experience included thirteen years in Jacksonville, FL working on master planned developments, public infrastructure projects and federal projects in the Southeast.

Richard Houghton
Assistant Vice President
B.F. Saul Co.
(703) 986 - 6096
richard.houghton@bfsaulco.com

Richard Houghton, AIA, LEED AP, is Assistant Vice President of Construction and Development for the B. F. Saul Company and Saul Centers in Bethesda, Maryland. His responsibilities include concept planning, design development, construction documentation and project delivery. Mr. Houghton has managed complex mixed use developments on demanding and constrained urban sites, including Park Van Ness, in Washington, DC and Clarendon Center, in Arlington, Virginia. His most recent project was a Homewood Suites Hotel in Arlington, Virginia, completed in February.

Mr. Houghton's design and management experience spans the commercial and the public spheres. As an architect with Hartman-Cox Architects, Mr. Houghton headed up planning and preservation initiatives on nationally significant historic sites including the Lincoln and Jefferson Memorials, the Smithsonian's Patent Office Building and Dulles Airport. He oversaw a major addition to the Kennedy-Warren Apartments, a landmark Art Deco building in Washington DC. That project also incorporated the restoration of the building's historic interiors.

In 2001 Mr. Houghton teamed up with the firm of Lourie and Chenoweth, winning an international design competition for canopies for Metro's open escalator wells. The iconic glass and stainless steel structures pay homage to the original 1970's Metro design while increasing Metro's street presence at stations throughout the region.

Hiroshi Jacobs
Associate
Studios Architecture
(202) 736 - 5905
hjacobs@studios.com

Hiroshi Jacobs, AIA is an architect with 15+ years of experience working on projects of many types and scales. He is a trusted design leader at Studios Architecture and is a firm believer that design can be transformative to the human experience. As the founder of HiJAC, a trans-disciplinary art & research practice, Hiroshi is also an accomplished artist. He has completed numerous large scale interactive art installations in DC and beyond.

Hiroshi holds a Master in Design Studies degree from Harvard University, where he was the recipient of the Daniel L Schodek Award for Technology and Sustainability. He also holds Bachelor and Master of Architecture degrees from Tulane University. Hiroshi is a registered architect in the District of Columbia and has held adjunct faculty positions at Tulane University and at Catholic University. He is a recipient of the 2014 National AIA Associates Award and the 2012 AIA DC Emerging Architect Award.

In what little spare time he has, he enjoys working on his 19th century rowhome near H Street and creating new cocktail recipes with his wife Anna.

Nicole McCall
Senior Regional Planner
Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments
(202) 962 - 3341
nmccall@mwkog.org

Through out her childhood, the potential expansion of the BART System stirred up thoughts in Nicole's imagination of being connected to what seemed to be distant yet captivating neighborhoods throughout the San Francisco Bay Area. Her interest in place, culture, and accessibility led her to pursue a Bachelor's Degree at Tulane University, in the unique City of New Orleans. A few years later, during Hurricane Katrina's aftermath, she became fascinated with the forces shaping the rebirth, rebuilding, and renewal of the City and ultimately earned a Master's in Urban and Regional Planning.

Today she manages cross-departmental initiatives focused on creating a more prosperous, accessible, livable, and sustainable metropolitan Washington at the Council of Governments. Her work involves supporting local jurisdictions work through the challenges of integrating transportation and land use planning to create vibrant communities. Outside of work she enjoys rock climbing, gardening, and training for long-distance bike tours.

Catherine Miliaras
Principal Planner, Historic Preservation
Dept. of Planning & Zoning, City of Alexandria
(703) 746 - 3834
catherine.miliaras@alexandriava.gov

Catherine's work includes design review for new construction located in Old Town as well as reviewing rehabilitation projects for historic buildings and providing technical assistance. Recent projects include the redevelopment of public housing into mixed-income developments and new development on the waterfront, including a hotel and parks. Additionally, she has worked on long-range planning efforts including the recently approved Old Town North plan and the Route 1 South Housing Strategy.

Prior to working in Alexandria, Catherine spent time at a preservation consulting firm in DC and as a county planner in rural Virginia. She has master's degrees in Urban & Environmental Planning and Architectural History from the University of Virginia and a BA in History from Dartmouth College. She enjoys being outside on the weekends whether hiking, exploring new places or visiting historic sites with her husband and two high-energy sons.

Joshua Orndoff
Director of Civil Engineering
LandDesign
(703) 549 - 7784
jordndorff@landdesign.com

Josh is the Director of Engineering in the Washington DC office of LandDesign. He has over 16 years of experience in the region in design and construction of residential, multi-family, commercial, industrial, and mixed-use projects. He manages both public and private infrastructure and development projects. He advocates for the collaboration of designers, both engineers and landscape architects, to create places that bring people together. His experience with all stages of the development process from site selection to bond release allows him to anticipate potential conflicts and develop strategies to keep the project moving forward. His focus is on finding solutions and eliminating "no" as answer. Before Josh started at LandDesign he spent a few weeks starting to build his river house out in Woodstock, Virginia. Josh and his wife Jodi are avid concert goers, just ask about his collection of t-shirts.

Daniel Outen
 Director, Development
 Outlier Realty Capital
 (704) 591-0624
 daniel.outen@gmail.com

Dan Outen and his wife, Caroline, and their dog, Sully, are back in DC after two years in Chapel Hill, NC at Kenan-Flagler Business School and then two years in Newport Beach, CA. In California, Dan served as a Development Director for the Irvine Company where he focused on office development projects and long-term retail strategy. Prior to business school, Dan spent four years with The JBG Companies as a Senior Analyst working on mixed-use residential developments including Fort Totten Square, The Galvan and 275 N Washington Street.

Now back in DC, Dan is a Managing Director at Outlier Realty Capital where he leads the development group. Outlier invests in and develops primarily multifamily assets including a growing co-living portfolio.

Dan and Caroline enjoy sailing, activities with their dog and trying new restaurants with friends. They look forward to rediscovering the city and are always open to food or drink recommendations!

 District Department of Transportation
 (407) 739 - 6524
 haley.peckett@dc.gov

Haley is a transportation planner specializing in systems and transit planning with the District Department of Transportation (DDOT) in Washington, D.C. She manages planning for major transit and multimodal planning projects in the District, including DC Streetcar and Washington Union Station expansion. She also specializes in National Environmental Policy Act processes for complex transportation processes and has worked closely with State and local DOTs and environmental agency staff on plans and projects across the U.S. Haley previously worked at the U.S. Department of Transportation (USDOT) Volpe Center, where she managed long-range and project-specific planning for MPOs and public land management agencies.

Her additional experience includes land use and urban design planning firms in Florida and Colorado. Haley holds a master's degree in City Planning from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and she is an avid cyclist, runner, and urban explorer.

Mark Phillips
Senior Transportation Economist - Analyst
WMATA
(202) 962 - 1240
mephillips@wmata.com

Mark Phillips is a talented planner with 15 years of experience and a true passion for the field. He has spent the last three years with WMATA's Office of Planning managing studies to improve the system's reliability, flexibility, and capacity; developing strategies to improve service while reducing costs; and working to advance TOD planning efforts. Before joining WMATA he was the long-range planner for St. Louis's transit system, a city planner in New York, and a regional planner in New Orleans. That interdisciplinary experience helps him bridge gaps between land use, transportation, and economic development planning.

In his spare time, Mark loves reading, coffee, wine, biking, activism, Netflix, and spending time with friends and family. He appreciates authenticity, and tries to find beauty and interest even in the small stuff. He loves exploring cities by foot and bus, and would spend all his time traveling if he could afford it!
