

Jim Prendergast

Principal, Design Director and Workplace leader | Gensler

Jim Prendergast is a Principal, Design Director and Workplace leader with our Gensler Chicago office. Jim is also a firmwide leader within Gensler's interior architecture practice, directing the development of tenant-driven architectural solutions and codeveloping our region's design talent contributing to the firm's overall design culture.

Jim excels in translating strategic planning objectives into designs for both intelligent workplace environments and innovative architecture.

Over the course of his 30-plus years of experience, Jim has served a diverse spectrum of clients having created - or directed- more than 10 million square feet of interior and architectural design. As an inspirational designer and forward thinker, Jim is frequently invited to present his work at client and professional forums and to lecture as part of university curricula on design and its impact on client culture and performance.
