

Brian Kidd
AIA LEED BD + C | Gensler

Throughout his nearly 40-year career, Brian has offered design and project management expertise on major urban residential, mixed-use, commercial office, and institutional projects of varying size and complexity. Specializing in residential and mixed-use design, Brian is committed to advancing sustainable design strategies in his work.

His early interest in architecture was expressed in designing and building treehouses in the foothills of California, though Brian has spent the bulk of his career in Chicago, contributing to the numerous successful high-rise residential buildings that span the city's skyline.
