Ben Apfelbaum

Project Executive

James G. Davis Construction

bapfelbaum@davisconstruction.com

Ben Apfelbaum has 20+ years of construction management experience, building schools, office buildings, and a concert hall, as well as thousands of residential units. As a Project Executive at DAVIS Construction, Ben has primary oversight of multiple operations teams for multifamily residential projects, ranging from affordable apartment buildings to high-end luxury condominiums.

He is actively involved in the preconstruction planning, procurement, and construction through to the successful delivery of finished residences across this region. Ben most resonates with DAVIS' core value of building relationships, as demonstrated by his meaningful client connections. He obtained a bachelor's degree in Civil Engineering from UVA and also holds LEED AP accreditation.

Outside of work and the high demands of two young children at home in Falls Church, Ben runs long distances to unwind and to keep in shape for chasing the tykes. He and his wife also enjoy traveling.

Development Company, where he was focused on opportunistic acquisitions for market and affordable development.

Tim Bertschinger

Senior Associate

Perkins Eastman

t.bertschinger@perkinseastman-dc.com

Tim was born in Colorado but had the good luck to grow up around western Europe experiencing amazing urban places and dense living patterns. An interest in cultural differences filtered through art and architectural history combined with a fascination for building and making things (in both physical and digital realms) led to studying architecture which brought him back to the United States. For the last 15 years he has been living here in the DMV working as an architect on a wide variety of project types, including large scale planning. The son of two teachers the siren song of education has pulled him back and for the last 8 years he has also moonlighted as a visiting critic and lecturer at both Catholic University's and University of Maryland's programs, teaching graduate design studios, and participates often as a jurist at George Washington University's Corcoran School of Arts & Design. He is passionate about sustainability and exploring how an application of good Urbanism can address global resiliency and climate change challenges effectively at scale while delivering quality of life and experience benefits to communities and individuals. Outside of work he enjoys playing guitar, being in the outdoors with his camera, and spending time with his wife (Smruti) and dog (Dexter).

Blake Bowen

Associate Planner (Assistant to the Zoning Administrator)

Arlington County, Zoning Division

bbowen@arlingtonva.us

Blake Bowen works as an Associate Planner (Assistant to the Zoning Administrator) in the Arlington County Zoning Division. Blake has become a subject matter expert regarding accessory dwellings and has collaborated with his colleagues in drafting two zoning ordinance amendments (2017 and 2019) that have greatly expanded the opportunities for many local residents to establish secondary dwelling units on their properties. Blake also grew up in Arlington County (on the same block where his dad grew up) and enjoyed watching the build-out and transformation of his hometown from an early age, inspiring a longstanding interest in urban planning. Blake received his undergraduate and graduate degrees in this field from the University of Virginia in 2006 and 2007 respectively. In his free time, Blake enjoys cooking, learning about architectural history, road trips, and visiting Virginia's numerous vineyards with his fiancée Lauren and their terrier puppy Rooney.

Paul Brazier

Senior Associate + Studio Leader

LandDesign

pbrazier@landddesign.com

Growing up in the Annandale Virginia, Paul has seen many changes to the region. The Mosaic District was home to his local drive-in movie theater, only second to the one at Rt. 29 and West Ox Road (Costco now). Burke Lake seemed like a day trip and he spent many an evening at the Capital Center in Largo, MD, for concerts or watching the Bullets and Capitals. He now calls Centreville home with his wife and two kids. He enjoys traveling, the outdoors, cooking and doing most home improvement projects. He loves land development engineering because he can see the projects that he has designed over the years, now being the places where people live, shop and play!

Jay Briley

President and Owner

American Smart Eco Lifestyle

Jbriley3859@gmail.com

Jay Briley is the president and owner of American Smart Eco Lifestyle, ASEL Inc., a residential, commercial development and construction company, located in Washington D.C. Jay graduated from a historically Black university, Virginia State University, with a Business Management degree, and was commissioned as an Army Quartermaster Officer. Summer of 2019, Jay acquired certification in solar panel system installation. After a three-year tour in the military, Jay joined forces with his father to start a home improvement company in Anacostia D.C. For several years, Jay and his father did hands-on, 100 percent renovation of D.C. row houses in the Le Droit and Capitol Hill neighborhoods. Jay then started his own construction company by acquiring land in Anacostia and developed three lots into three brick workforce townhomes. For several years, Jay built new construction and modular homes in Annandale, Virginia, Great Falls Virginia, Falls Church, Virginia, and Fairfax, Virginia. In 2002, Jay and his brother acquired a homestead property. The homestead property was a 12-unit building located on Capitol Hill in Washington D.C. The 12-unit building was transformed into six bi-level condominiums. Jay continues his construction over the years with high end renovations throughout the District, Virginia and Maryland. Now Jay is ready to embark on developing D Street Village, an eight retail bay/ 40 condominium units, a project located on Capitol Hill, Washington D.C.
