

Robert Poppleton serves as Vice President for Furman Development. Robert's responsibilities include the coordination of development activity from acquisition due diligence through to delivery for the division's office, retail, and mixed-use projects. In this position Robert leverages both public and private sector experience in commercial real estate investment advisory, finance, and portfolio management.

Prior to joining The Furman Co., Robert worked in commercial real estate in both the private and public sectors. Before moving to Greenville, SC in 2012, he worked as a Portfolio Manager for the U.S. Department of State's Bureau of Overseas Buildings Operations and prior to that for Costar Group. Robert received a master's degree in real estate finance from Georgetown University and a graduate certification in Political Science and Economics at the University of Notre Dame as well as a Bachelor of Arts in Philosophy from the Catholic University of America.

Robert has been an active member of the Urban Land Institute (ULI) since 2010. Currently Robert is a ULI REDI Mentor and a member of the Rethinking Southern city Regional Initiative Council. When not developing real estate, Robert can be found exploring trails and greenways around the Carolinas with his wife and six children.
