About the All-Ohio Exchange

The ULI All-Ohio Young Leader Exchange (the Exchange) - a collaborative initiative that brings together emerging leaders from across Ohio - was first launched by the Cleveland, Columbus, and Cincinnati Young Leader Groups as a one-day program in 2024. The aim was for ULI's emerging leaders and young professionals to explore urban development and build lasting cross-state connections. In 2026, Cleveland will take center stage to launch the expansion of the event into a day-and-a-half long conference.

The Exchange is designed to explore urban development, share best practices, and spark new ideas for the cities' futures. In previous years, this event convened in Columbus (2024) and Cincinnati (2025), where participants toured transformative projects, engaged with local experts, and built lasting connections among the next generation of real estate and community leaders.

Next year, 2026, marks the first-ever Exchange in Cleveland, where the Shore-to-Core-to-Shore transformation will be examined in depth, exploring development along the riverfront, in the downtown core, and on the lakefront. Over two days, the city's past will be highlighted, the current waterfront transformation taking place, will be discussed, and the plans for future development will be showcased. Through immersion in these dynamic districts and with input from the visionaries driving the changes, participants will get to experience firsthand how Cleveland is reimagining its core and shores for a vibrant and inclusive future.
