

Craig Lawson is President of Craig Lawson & Co., LLC (“CLC”), a Los Angeles-based land use consulting firm he founded in 1999, which provides zoning related services including due diligence research, pre-development feasibility analysis, and the preparation and processing of complex land use entitlement applications such as zone changes, variances, subdivisions, and conditional use permits. Mr. Lawson also coordinates strategic governmental lobbying efforts on behalf of CLC clients and has served as an expert witness in numerous legal matters (including trial testimony). With more than 40 years of public and private sector experience, Mr. Lawson has developed an expertise in zoning research and land use analysis, entitlement strategies, project timelines, and obtaining local government approvals for complex and multi-phase development projects.