

Erick Lopez. With over 20 years of experience in the field of city planning and a demonstrated ability to build consensus among various stakeholders with diverse interests, Erick Lopez has a history of managing and completing major policy initiatives for Los Angeles City Planning. He spearheaded the effort to develop and fund the work program to comprehensively revise the City's Zoning Code and is now a project manager for the New Zoning Code (aka re:code LA). Over the years, Erick has developed a unique understanding of current and emerging technology and how it can be applied to, and addressed by the field of planning.