

Tunde Ogunwole is a Vice President of Project Management at Prologis. He is currently working on multiple tenant improvement, ground up development, and entitlement industrial projects throughout Southern California. In addition, he leads a small team of development managers covering LA, Orange County and San Diego. He works closely with his colleagues on capital deployment and leasing. Having spent several years in the Inland Empire and multiple jurisdictions in Southern California, he has a unique perspective of the trends that are happening in e-commerce and in the industrial market. Tunde is a former Naval Officer who graduated from the US Naval Academy and has an MBA from Pepperdine in Finance & Global Business.