

Timothea Tway currently serves as the City Planner for the City of Beverly Hills, where she oversees the work of the Planning Division. In her ten years at the City she has held several positions and her work has focused primarily on long range planning and policy. As City Planner, she is working closely with the City Manager's Office and Public Works Department to create and implement new regulations for outdoor dining and parklets, using lessons learned from the temporary OpenBH Program that was created in response to the COVID pandemic. Timothea earned her BS in Public Policy, Management, and Planning from the University of Southern California and a Master's Degree in City and Regional Planning from Cal Poly San Luis Obispo.
