

Dana Sayles

Founder and Managing Partner Three6sixty

Dana is the founder and owner of three6sixty. She envisioned the company as a full-service land use and entitlement firm that combined her experience with fast-paced project and construction management with her education and knowledge of urban planning and regulatory processes. After working as a Director of Development at Urban Pacific Builders and Vice President of Development at John Laing Homes, Dana started working independently in 2007 and founded three6sixty in 2012. Dana's 25 years of project management experience, extensive knowledge of zoning code and land use policy, and an intuitive strategic approach ensures that three6sixty clients have the best guidance with their development projects internally, with cities and with local communities. Dana has a broad network of relationships with city staff and elected officials, and she frequently participates with policy working groups and advisory committees. Dana holds an undergraduate degree in City and Regional Planning from Cornell University, a Masters of Urban Planning from USC and is a licensed member of the American Institute of Certified Planners. She serves on the Culver City Planning Commission and as well as on the boards of the Jewish Federation and the Hollywood Central Park. Outside the office, Dana loves travel, great restaurants, and spending time with her two sons.