

Eric Tang

Head of Central and Western Region

Corebridge Financial

Eric's CRE debt career spans nearly 17 years covering non-bank financial lenders and banking clients. At Corebridge Financial (formerly AIG) he manages credit risk & underwriting for the U.S. Central & Western Regions. Eric and his team reviews opportunities to originate CRE debt/mortgage financing on multi-family, industrial, office, and retail asset classes, including construction and pre-stabilized bridge lending opportunities, as well as note financing, repo facilities, and other structured credit transactions. Prior to Corebridge Financial/AIG, he served similar roles and responsibilities at Guggenheim Partners and J.P.Morgan. Eric's experience also includes workouts and special servicing for distressed CRE loans in 2008/2009 during GFC. In addition to the debt side, he worked on the acquisitions side for a Taiwanese private real estate family office in the late 1990s/early 2000s. Eric graduated from the University of Southern California in 2006 with a B.S. in Business Administration. During his collegiate years, he was a member of Alpha Kappa Psi, Marshall School of Business Ethics Case Competition Team, and a former walk-on for the USC Golf team. Eric currently enjoys volunteering at his children's schools, being involved with the PTA, and is an advocate for neurodiversity.
