

Sam Pepper is a Director at Lincoln Property Company where he is responsible for office and mixed-use projects, leading large project teams and overseeing all aspects from entitlements and pre-development through construction. With over 12 years of commercial real estate experience, Sam has established diverse expertise in architecture, project management, leasing, development, entitlements, portfolio strategy and acquisitions. Throughout his career, Sam has played a crucial role in many notable Projects such as Pier 17, a premier entertainment destination in Manhattan, 550 State Street, New York's first all-electric skyscraper and the Westside Pavilion in Westwood.

Sam received a Bachelor of Science in Architecture from The University of Virginia, a Master of Real Estate Development from MIT and is a Licensed Architect. Since September 2023, Sam has hosted Building LA, a bi-weekly podcast focusing on the buildings and projects shaping Los Angeles, featuring interviews with the key individuals driving them forward.