

When Omgivning was founded in 2009, Morgan was one of the original team members. Now in his role as a Director, he oversees all hospitality-related projects across the firm. He is skilled in adaptive reuse and new construction projects at all scales - from concept design through construction administration.

Morgan specializes in resolving the complications often found when reusing existing, older buildings. His passion for creative problem-solving and comprehensive detailing appears in his coordination of complex projects and his passion for intricate custom interior design. He studied and worked in Italy for over two and a half years and brings Italian-inspired respect for historic buildings to his work.

A fourth-generation Los Angeleno, Morgan grew up in downtown Los Angeles and has taken an active role in its revitalization through his project work and his time. Among Morgan's many activities in Los Angeles is his work with the City Council Offices, Office of Historic Resources, and the Los Angeles Conservancy to preserve the City's endangered historic fabric.
