

Haley Anderson

Haley is a Managing Director in PwC's Financial Markets and Real Estate practice with over 12 years of real estate valuation and consulting experience. At PwC, she works with institutional investors and private equity firms on the execution of investment strategies, financial due diligence, and purchase price allocations. She has been part of the Emerging Trends in Real Estate process for the past 10 years and supports the editors in collecting research and interviewing market participants. She has a degree in Policy, Planning, and Development from the University of Southern California.